The dog groomers at Westlake Village Animal Hospital's partner, Agoura Westlake Animal Hospital, have the winning combination of knowledge, patience, and love of animals.

"Grooming is a specific niche because you really have to know what you're doing," says Stan Slaton, business manager of Westlake Village Animal Hospital. It's a difficult skill to master, but they've been doing it a long time and they just do a really good job."

Slaton credits Steven Rosenstein, DVM for overseeing the entire practice, including its groomers, for more than two decades. Rosenstein and Daniel Slaton of Westlake Village Animal Hospital are merging their practices and will soon be working together at its new 8,500 square-foot animal hospital at 31166 Via Colinas in Westlake Village.

Adjacent to the animal hospital will be the exciting new 20,000 square-foot Barkley Pet Hotel & Day Spa, where the current groomers will relocate and additional groomers will be on staff.

"The dogs that are going to the Barkley for grooming are also receiving spa treatments where they can get their nails clipped, facials and massages, in addition to regular grooming," said Slaton.

In the new facility, all employees will be required to take an online course given by the Pet Care Services Association to receive certification as a Level I Technician.

Currently, Westlake Village Animal Hospital is at 2806 Townsgate Road, Suite C, in Westlake Village.
